

How to Search for Journal Articles

Characteristics of Journal Articles

- A search using article database is effective
- OPAC cannot search for articles
- Journals are available in paper format and as electronic media
- Some articles have been published on the web.

....., etc.

1. What are Journal (Academic) Articles?

An academic article is a research achievement that is published by researchers. Many of them are published as articles in an academic journal and so they are often called "Journal Articles". Articles fall under the following categories.

- Original Paper (Full paper)

An original paper is written in detail about a research achievement that has originality and novelty. It is often peer-reviewed.

- Research Note

A research note is a brief report about new facts discovered during the research process. This has immediacy.

- Letter

A brief letter about the latest information of a research project. This has immediacy too.

- Review

A review summarizes the research achievements and trends regarding a specific field. Some of them indicate future tasks and developments.

2. Searching for Journal Articles

You cannot search for specific journal articles using OPAC, because they are classified as chapters within journals. In order to search for journal articles, you need to search article databases.

e.g.) Nishizuka, Y. "Studies and Perspectives of Protein-kinase-c. "

Science. 233, no. 4761, (1986) p.305-312.

When you access a database, please click “Databases” link on the library top page. Databases can be narrowed down using the right side bar in “List of Databases” page.

Library Website
<https://lib.kobe-u.ac.jp/en/>

A detailed information screen is displayed when you select a database.

You can access databases by clicking “データベース名 / Database”.

You can also see descriptions and manuals in the detailed information screen.

6. Tips for Searching Articles

You will perform a search more effectively if you utilize useful search functions (e.g. boolean operations, narrowing functions or specifying search fields).

1 Specifying Search Fields

You can restrict objects by specifying search fields.

2 Timespan

Published year or term are set.

3 Boolean Operations

e.g.) Web of Science Core Collection

AND		Results that include both A and B are found.
OR		Results that include at least A or B are found.
NOT		Results that include A but not B are found.

7. How to Obtain Journal Articles

After you search for information about articles, you need to obtain their text. It is effective to search for them in the following order.

Step 1: Search for e-resources.

- ① Search article DBs and find links to full-text.
- ② Search for e-journals using OPAC or E-Resource List.

I did not find the e-resources.....

Step 2: Obtain journals at Kobe Univ. Library.

Search for journals using OPAC and check their volumes.

* You should apply for ILL service if the journals are held at a remote library.

I did not find the journal in Kobe Univ. Library.

Step 3: Use resources held at other institutes (ILL)

With ILL, you can obtain copies of articles from other libraries (for a fee).

8. How to Search for E-Journals

E-journals can be searched for using OPAC. Before clicking "JOURNAL", you should confirm available range from "Volumes".

9. How to Search for Journals

You need to confirm the available volumes before accessing journals. When you search for journals with very short titles, it is effective to select "Journal" as "Document Type" and "Full Title" from pull-down menu.

The screenshot shows a search interface with the following elements:

- Search Conditions: Search box contains "science". Pull-down menu is set to "Full Title".
- Document Type: "Journals" is selected.
- Results Table:

Location	Volumes	Year	Call No.	Comment
Library for Social Sciences	3(),4-7,8(),9-63,64(2-6),65	1951-2013	14-2-955
Lib. for Humanities	3(2-4),4-75+	1951-2024	010-51-T	最新号：事務室 / バックナンバー：地下書庫
Library for Human Development Sciences	1-25,50-69	1947-2018		開架. 68(1)- : 未製本

About Volumes

- The numbers outside parentheses are volumes, inside them are issues.
- A hyphen means that the library has held all volumes between hyphens.
- A comma means that the library has not held certain volumes.
- When any issue has not been held, there is nothing inside parentheses.
- Plus means that the library is subscribing to the journal.

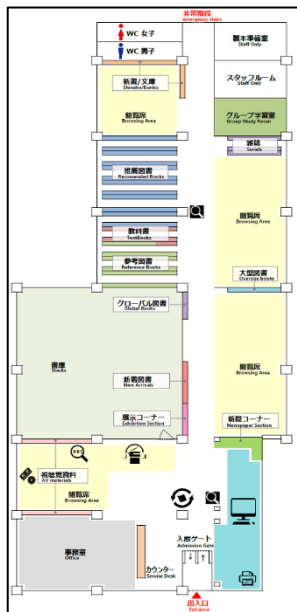

e.g.) 5(1-3, 7-12), 7-8, 9()

⇒ Library has issue 1 to 3 and 7 to 12 of volume 5, all issues of volume 7 and 8 and volume 9, but not issue 4 to 6 of volume 5, volume 6 and a part of volume 9.

10. How to Search for Journals

Periodicals' locations often differ between current issues and back numbers. You need to confirm their detailed location after checking their volumes and library.
